

Corey Maryan is a Graduate Research Assistant working under Dr. Tamjidul Hoque. Corey is currently working on a project in collaboration with Naval Research Labs on the effects of machine learning with rip currents. The overall goal of the project is to find ways to identify and predict rip currents using techniques similar to facial recognition.